

Society of Technical Communications
San Luis Obispo Chapter
SLO STC

Hello and Welcome to SLO STC!

SLO STC is the San Luis Obispo chapter of the Society for Technical Communication. The International STC (www.stc.org) is the largest organization of its kind in the world with about 18,000 members in over 150 international chapters. As reflected in our local chapter, the STC is comprised of a broad range of professionals including technical writers, editors, and illustrators; publication specialists; instructional designers; Web designers and developers; academics; information architects; usability and human factors specialists; visual designers; multimedia creators and animators; translators; and more!

SLO STC Chapter Goals

We recognize that for many, technical communications represent an invaluable resource toward achieving a wide variety of personal and professional goals. With that thought in mind, our chapter goals are:

1. Support people and groups expressing their entrepreneurial energy in a wide variety of areas.
2. Help people improve and expand their communication skills as they blaze new trails.
3. Engage with businesses, professional associations, nonprofit organizations, and educational institutions.
4. Connect and join forces with groups that have overlapping domains of interest, identify common goals, and explore opportunities for partnering.
5. Highlight what we and others have to offer using technical communication skills and via our Web site.
